FalseFront is pleased to present new work and a performance by Stephanie Simek.

Presenting a two-part study of light-controlled audio mechanics and featuring new work of video, painting, light, and sounds, Simek dissects obsolete technology, twisting the internals into color spectra sonification. By further referencing the light signals of televised hybrid swimming, she is able to generate an acoustic signature that corresponds both to synchronization and randomness, creating an audio instrument and voice uniquely her own.

Performance starts after dusk.

Stephanie Simek works locally as a jewelry designer and co-founded and directed Rererato, a once alternative art and performance space in Northeast Portland, Oregon.
